UM TO OFFER DRAMA COURSES IN GREAT FALLS

MISSOULA--

Two drama courses, "Introduction to Acting: Self Expression," and "Finding Myself in the Character," will be offered by the University of Montana during November in Great Falls.

"Introduction to Acting: Self Expression" will meet Tuesdays, 6-8 p.m., Nov. 6 - Dec. 4. The course is designed to explore self awareness. Basic acting issues and activities will be the basis for the class structure. The course is offered for one undergraduate credit.

"Finding Myself in the Character" will meet Wednesdays, 7-10 p.m., Nov. 7-28. Class work will be individualized and will include information on auditioning, characterization and rehearsal techniques. The course is offered for one undergraduate or one graduate credit.

Jane Fellows Dean will teach both courses. Dean received a bachelor of fine arts degree from UM in 1972. She has taught acting to Great Falls high School students and to university students and has conducted several workshops, including one at the 1981 National Thespian Convention in Muncie, Ind. Dean earned a master of fine arts degree from UM in 1984.

Both classes will meet at Paris Gibson Square in Great Falls. Because enrollment is limited, preregistration is required by Nov. 2. The fee for each course is $30.

More information can be obtained from the UM Center for Continuing Education, 125 Main Hall, UM Missoula, MT 59812; phone 243-4626 or 243-2900.
